Who is at risk to experience home lessness?

- Groups or populations that have a particularly high risk of homelessness include:
 - Households living in neighborhoods where a high percentage of residents lived before experiencing homelessness
 - · Individuals with criminal justice histories
 - · Households that moved frequently in the past year
 - Households with children younger than 2 years old
 - Households involved with child protective services

Who is at risk to experience home lessness?

Further targeting or prioritization can prevent evictions from leading to homelessness.

- Households with low income (below 30% or 50% of Area Median Income)
- Households who have eviction proceedings initiated
- Households who are losing their homes or have an eviction threat and recently lost employment in a sector impacted substantially by COVID-19
- Individuals who exit institutions like detention, jails, prisons, or hospitals
- · Individuals who age out of foster care
- 2. I attended a webinar that the Metro Dallas Homeless Alliance held last week. In it, "Homelessness is a Housing Problem" authors stated that the geographic locations with the highest housing costs (homeownership costs and rental costs) have the highest rates of homelessness.

Ideas for the plan:

1. Create regions where people in areas like Stephenville can be helped in a nearby larger community that serves as a "hub."

- 2. Discharge planning from the state level for: health, mental health, corrections, foster care
- 3. Leverage state agency relationships with landlords to get more units participating in serving people experiencing homelessness
- 4. Get state government agencies more involved in addressing homelessness, in addition to relying on social services and faith communities to address homelessness with little funding
- 5. See how other states and ICHes are addressing homelessness from the state government level
- 6. Need more state funds to address homelessness, and make those funds available to cities other than the nine largest cities
